THE WINE PARK STORY

Wine Park is an importer of fine wines since 2007 with a curated selection of more than 150 wines from some of the world's finest estates. Wine Park selection showcases all the major grape varieties across red, white, rose and sparkling wines. Our portfolio features a hand-picked selection of wineries with passionate and innovative winemakers crafting wines of great quality and which truly express the region's essence. The wines are exclusively imported from over 53 family owned producers, 12 countries, and over 30 wine regions. Wine Park's journey began when Vishal Kadakia discovered wines and his passion for them as a student in Boston in 1997. He knew that wines would certainly be part of his life.

The name Wine Park is in fact inspired by New York's Central Park where Vishal went on a lot of runs, thinking mostly about wine. Vishal returned to India to find a burgeoning wine scene with room for a more creative approach. Along with his wife, Ashu, he explored the idea importing boutique wines of the type which Indians had never before tasted. Wine Park wanted Indians to discover new and interesting wines – wines with fascinating flavours, compelling stories produced by family owned wineries. The company also wanted to introduce Indian wine drinkers to new wines and new regions. The overarching philosophy was that the best way to sell a bottle of wine was to open it and get more people to taste it. Today, our collection features a range of international wines, catering to a variety of tastes and price points.

Matias Riccitelli

Mendoza, Argentina

Matias Riccitelli is a young and thrillingly bold winemaker who is reinventing Argentina's Malbec style and impressing the world with a refreshing approach to winemaking itself. Born to famed Argentine winemaker Jorge Riccitelli, Matias opted to arm himself with valuable international experience working in vineyards across the world and eventually returned home to make his own wines.

Matias chose Mendoza's Luja de Cuyo region where he owns 20 hectares of ungrafted old vineyards in three distinct microclimates at the foothills of the Andes mountains. Matias Riccitelli wines reflect the young winemaker's love for the vast Mendoza region and winemaking ethos that marries tradition and modern creativity.

MadFish

Margaret River, Australia

Madfish is a cult family estate based in Western Australia's famous region of Margaret River founded in 1992 by Jeff Burch, an avid surfer and lover of wine with a deep understanding of the region's unique terroir. The winery draws its name from Madfish Bay an elegant, easy drinking expression from the fruit it's team harvests from select parcels rooted in Margaret River soils blessed with Mediterranean climate, cool ocean breeze and clay and gravel soil similar to Bordeaux. Madfish also harvests vineyards in the Great Southern wine region that sits between mountain and ocean. Madfish's wines are refreshing and meant to drink now with vibrant fruit and good acidity, also making them quite food friendly.

Two Hands

Barossa Valley, Australia

Two Hands Wines sits in Australia’s heart of red wine country. Based in South Australia’s Barossa Valley, Two Hands Wines is powered by Michael Twelftree and his American partner Tim Hower and their collective objective is a clear as harvest day – showcase the impressive diversity of Aussie Shiraz.

Fruit is soured from six of Australia’s finest regions. Their Barossa winery has been custom built to harvest small batches of fruit. Every parcel irrespective of size is crushed, fermented and barrel matured separately. This boutique approach shows up on the palate of their staggering range of wines that lay accent on the characteristics of the precise vineyard the fruit is picked from.

Heinrich

Burgenland, Austria

Heinrich is an Austrian family estate credited with transforming the region where it makes its wines. Founded by Gernot and Heike Heinrich in 1990, Heinrich chose adventurously to plant red wine grapes in the Neusiedlersee region, creating an unoaked and elegant Pinot Noir style. The moderating effect of Lake Neusiedl alluvial soils are ideal for nurturing red wine grapes.

This geographic advantage coupled with faith in biodynamic viticulture has led the Hienrich family to emerge as one of Austria’s leading makers of red wine.Gernot Heinrich perfectly encapsulates the Heinrich approach saying, “we give the wines plenty of time to mature, the time that hardly anyone has today. It is above all else time that shapes our wines.

Loimer

Kamptal, Austria

Loimer is one of Austria’s most notable modern family estates based in sundrenched and cool region of Kamptal. Alfred Loimer established the winery in 1964 in the northern region of Kamptal, planting vineyards in nutrient rich soil. His son Fred took over in 1998, introducing his own creative insight by barrel ageing Gruner Vetliner, Austria’s local and very popular white wine.

He is extremely particular about maintaining the house’s philosophy of terroir identity, having divided up the estate’s vineyards into 100 separate parcels. No surprise then that Loimer gets high praise for its white wine vintages, especially the Gruner Vetliner and Riesling.

Sattlerhoff

Sudsteiermark, Austria

The Sattlerhof estate, nestled in the cool climes of Gamlitz in the South Styria region, has a rich wine making legacy of 133 years. Chief winemaker Willi Sattler takes a very modern approach and attributes his winery’s success to the approach of cultivating small vineyard parcels on steep hills with a special emphasis on organic winegrowing, sustainable treatment of the soils and nurturing the vines to increase their longevity. Sattler is personally hands-on throughout the fruit’s journey from vine to wine, emphasizing hand-selection of grapes and careful pressing of the must – all of which combines to produce excellent taste and sublime quality.

Château Brane-Cantenac

Bordeaux / Margaux, France

Château Brane-Cantenac is located in Bordeaux's highly coveted Margaux appellation on the left bank of the Gironde. The wine produced here was classified as one of fifteen Deuxièmes Crus (Second Growths) in the original Bordeaux Wine Official Classification of 1855. The estate's present owner Henri Lurton believes in a hands-on approach to winemaking rather than relying on technology.

The vineyards are planted atop sandy, gravel-based soils interspersed with large pebbles that retain warmth from the sun while the gravel efficiently drains water from around the vines. The Chateau has significant plantings of Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot as well as Cabernet Franc and, notably Carménère. Brane-Cantenac is aged for 18 months in new oak barrels.

Château Meyney

Bordeaux/Saint-Estèphe, France

Château Meyney is an estate of stellar reputation that nestles in the esteemed and picturesque Left Bank commune of Saint-Estèphe. The winery is recognised as having one of the longest histories in the Médoc (it was established in 1660) with wines that are surprisingly modern in style. The wines are made under the diligent watch of Hubert de Bouard of the superb Château Angelus. With 51 hectares of prime Medoc vineyards, the estate consistently turns out high quality red wines led by Cabernet Sauvignon. The wines are aged in French oak barrels of which 50 per cent are new. Château Meyney's wines are frequently rated above 90 points and are said to express opulent red fruit, spice and savoury notes, finishing on the back of long supple tannins.

Château Phelan Segur

Bordeaux /Saint-Estèphe, France

The fruit for Phélan Ségur's wines comes from the haloed terroir of Saint-Estèphe in the Medoc on Bordeaux's Left Bank. Phélan Ségur has 70 hectares under vine, of which over half are planted with Cabernet Sauvignon which thrives on the Left Bank, perhaps better than any other region on earth. The region's soil comprises a thick layer of gravel with pebbles and above all the gravels coated with clay sands.

The Château handpicks all its fruit and has dedicated tanks to ferment juice from each of its 39 vineyard parcels. Château Phélan Ségur reveals the purity of the fruit, the accuracy of its structure, the silkiness of its tannins, all with a natural freshness. After long ageing, it reveals a bouquet of a rare complexity, the oak harmoniously integrated.

Château Poujeaux

Bordeaux /Médoc, France

Château Poujeaux is a historic 19th century Château situated in Moulis-en-Médoc in Bordeaux.. The vineyard covers 52 hectares and produces about 25,000 cases of wine per year. Their flagship Bordeaux blend comprises 50% Cabernet Sauvignon, 40% Merlot, 5% Cabernet Franc and 5% Petit Verdot. The Château's vineyard soils are mostly gravel based with good elevation.

Château Poujeaux enjoyed a significant resurgence of fortune in 2008 when it was sold to the Cuvelier family, who own the Clos Fourtet Château in Saint Emilion on the Right Bank. Under the stewardship of Mathieu Cuvelier, winemaking facilities and viticulture was modernized. Reduced yields and sustainable viticulture have significantly raised the wine's quality and the Château's reputation.

Guiberteau

Loire Valley, France

Romain Guiberteau began his vinous journey on a whim in 1996 but rapidly emerged the ‘grand vigneron’ of Loire Valley, turning out stunning vintages in Saumur appellation’s Brézé vineyards rooted in limestone soils and highly valued for the quality of its Chenin Blanc and Cabernet Franc. Loire Valley has long been underrated, compared to Bordeaux, Burgundy and Rhone Valley but modern and creative winemakers like Guiberteau have been shining a light on Loire Valley’s immense potential. Guiberteau is a protégé of Clos Rougeard, who helped redefine Loire’s Saumur region and Guiberteau has taken to the next level with his organic, low interventionist approach. In the appellation of Brézé, Guiberteau has organically farmed the best vine parcelsto turn out a stellar Chenin Blanc that draws on flint soils to express delightful minerality to go with citrus and peach while his ‘Cab Franc’ impresses with barrel aged charm and palate of succulent cherries and herbs

Thunevin

Bordeaux/Saint Emilion, France

Jean-Luc Thunevin was never one for following the rules on anything so when he bought his first parcel of Bordeaux vines in St Emilion over 31 years ago, he began reinventing them. What gave was his first vintage of Château Valandraud, one of the world's first "garage wines". Working with an innovative approach, Thunevin won over Bordeaux's foremost critics Robert Parker with 95 points soon after.

Thunevin then emerged as Bordeaux's quintessential Bad Boy and leading garage vintner. He believes that harvesting and destemming by hand, cropping low yields and using new French oak has translated into the estate's many sublime vintages. His vineyards are planted in soils of clay and limestone with the region's top varietals and his wines are intense yet elegant.

Reichsgraf Von Kesselstatt

Mosel, Germany

Reichsgraf von Kesselstatt is an acclaimed German estate based in the country's most well-known wine region, Mosel Valley. The winery is notable for being among the region's most traditional with a history spanning 650 years. All the grape is handpicked in spite of their vineyard's steep inclines.

Open tank fermentation of the crushed fruit allows wild yeasts to do the job as well as impart unique character to wines from each specific vineyard. This 'human' and gentle approach to winemaking at Reichsgraf von Kesselstatt has allowed the estate to bottle wines of distinctive, delicate, minerally style that have come to define and globally elevate the star of Mosel, Saar and Ruwer.

VIVINO 4.1

Tasting Notes

The nose is rather fruity and floral, while the elegant mouthfeel is dominated by fresh and fine flavours of ripe stone fruits such as peaches and yellow plums. The minerality of the slate soils delivers a salty and spicy character that goes perfectly along with the lively acidity and delicate medium sweetness.

Grapes:	Pinot Noir
Wine Type:	Red Wine
Wine Style:	Medium Bodied
Alcohol Level:	13%
Wine Closure:	Cork

MRP ₹ 4,895

Tasting Notes

The nose is dominated by floral and spicy flavours, while subtle hints of red berries and wild herbs complete the typical Pinot Noir characteristics. With the grapes not being destemmed, this Pinot Noir offers a pleasant but ripe tannin structure with flavours of spices, cherries and red berries on the palate. In addition to that, the cooler mineral style from its Saar origin lends this wine a smooth elegance which ends up in a distinctive but round and harmonious body.

Donnhoff

Nahe, Germany

Based in one of Germany’s finest wine regions of Nahe, Weingut Dönnhoff enjoys a well established reputation of producing high quality Riesling. The family estate has its vineyards Nahe’s sub region of Oberhausen and has been producing wine since the mid-18th century.

Its modern renaissance however began in 1971 thanks to family member Helmut Dönnhoff who took over as winemaker and has been richly praised by Robert Parker and legendary wine writer Hugh Johnson. Wiengut Donnhoff’s Riesling vineyards are rooted in volcanic soils that impart fine minerality and good acidity.

Tasting Notes

Brimming with stone fruit, this juicy dry riesling is hard not to like. Very lively and light-footed, also thanks to the moderate alcohol (11.5%), the mineral acidity and the spritz of natural carbon dioxide, which really lift the very clean finish. From organically grown grapes with Fair’n Green certification.

Rudolf Fürst

Franken, Germany

Rudolf Furst is a family estate of majestic reputation in the German region of Franken where the family estate makes top Riesling and Pinot Noir. Based in the picturesque town of Bürgstadt. The family has been making wine here for almost 400 years. Father and son Paul and Sebastian work together in getting the most out of the estate's steep southern facing vineyards planted on sandstone soils. Now while Franken is well known for the quality of its Riesling, the region also impresses with the quality of its graceful, fruit forward reds, namely Pinot Noir which the Germans proudly call Spatburgunder, made from fruit that benefits from the local iron-rich soils. Using low impact viticulture and drawing less fruit per hectare, the Furst family has turned out a superb Pinot, teeming with cherries and cinnamon laced with fresh mint. Legendary wine critic Jancis Robinson has acknowledged Rudolf Fürst as a 'Pinot sage'

The Tradition is the estate Spatburgunder and comes from grapes grown in the vineyard that sits just below the Furst family home and winery. Expressive cool red fruits with flecks of blueberries mix with cinnamon and liquorice. The palate is overlaid with the fresh mint and sour cherry. This 2020 vintage is lifted and bright thanks to good acidity and gentle tannins and is a most fabulous introduction to this high-quality estate

The Daily Dose

Solapur|Nashik, India

It’s rare for an Indian wine importer to foray into domestic wine production which is seen as potential competition to international ferments. In one case though, the dabbling has yielded wines of easy approach and fine indigenous expression.

The Daily Dose is a Wine Park enterprise, producing a red and white wine from grapes sourced from organic vineyards in Solapur and vinified with a boutique approach at Oakwood wineries located close to Nashik. The resulting wines are a fine representation of Indian terroir and recognise the evolving Indian palate with a fruit forward, ripe style.

Colterenzio

Alto Adige, Italy

The Colterenzio winery is a wine grower cooperative, based in the Sudtirol region of Alto Adige in Northern Italy, bordering Austria where it first began its winemaking journey in 1960. The winery receives grapes from over 300 local grape-growing families. Coltrenzio takes a modern approach to wine making with over four ranges of wines encompassing over 12 Italian and French noble grapes.

The wines are aged both in steel tanks and oak barrels. White wine accounts for more than 65 per cent of its total production. These wines are full-bodied, elegant and produced to be capable of great ageing. The wine generally has both complexity and the capacity to age due to the time spent on its lees and in oak. As well as using green energy, the newer parts of the winery have been designed to blend with the natural environment.

Passopisciaro

Sicily, Italy

Passopisciaro's vineyards carpet the slopes of Mount Etna, an active volcano. Winery owner Andrea Franchetti is credited with being one of the winemakers responsible for Etna's red wine style nearly 20 years ago. He is one of the few wine makers credited with transforming Etna from a bulk producing region to high quality appellation wines. Franchetti learnt winemaking in Bordeaux and has a successful wine in Tuscany called Tenuta di Trinoro and then established Passopisciaro in 2000.

He was also the first to plant international varieties like Chardonnay in a region so intensely focused on local varieties. The results, however, have been stunningly good because of Franchetti's focus on varietal expression as opposed to excessive oak treatment, thereby allowing the fruit to express the region's unique terroir.

Querciabella

Tuscany, Italy

Founded in 1974 Querciabella is a quintessential Italian family estate in that the wines reflect tradition and values of commitment to quality. Sebastiano Cossia Castiglioni, the son of the original owner believes that quality begins in the vineyard and with minimal intervention one can produce a wine that is truly a reflection of its terroir.

That philosophy has translated into the vintage success of Querciabella's wines, namely Camartina, Batàr, and Querciabella Chianti Classico, which have been highly rated by critics and frequently feature among the world's top 100 wines. The family owns vineyards in Tuscany's iconic appellations of Chianti Classico and Maremma.

Tasting Notes

Intense ruby red in the glass, the charm of Mongrana does not take long to reveal itself. This fine Tuscan red expresses aromas of ripe fruit, morello cherry, blackberry and blueberry. In the glass, the wine opens up nicely to reveal a complex bouquet with slight hints of leather, coffee powder and cocoa enriched by a touch of liquorice. The wine’s long finale is savoury with mineral, iron notes that persist in the mouth complemented by soft tannins.

Romitorio

Tuscany, Italy

Castello Romitorio is a family estate nestled in the Tuscan town of Montalcino where it produces the region’s most sought after Sangiovese style, Brunello di Montalcino. Castello Romitorio is run by wine maker and artist Filippo Chia whose mother Sandro Chia, also an artist, purchased Castello di Romitorio in 1984.

Located in the northwest of Montalcino, Castello Romitorio’s vineyards blend in with local vegetation, extracting nutrients from the clay and albarese soils. The boutique Italian house makes its fine red wines from high quality fruit leading to vintages rich in flavour with impeccable balance and the potential to age for decades.

Tasting Notes

Smelling this transports you to the ochre-colored Tuscan countryside: the scent of the sun-dried earth and the oak forest is right there with the characteristically tangy Marasca cherry note of Sangiovese. The body has tension and shape without being heavy, there is freshness and bite: this was made for the table. This is pervasive and honest, has both impact and agility. The fruit -redcurrant, cranberry and Morello cherry- sings with purity on the finish. This has charm and character in spades.

Tenuta Sant Antonio

Veneto, Italy

Tenuta Sant'Antonio is a reputed Veneto estate envisioned and run by four brothers who have elevated the style of the Valpolicella and Soave wines. Tenuta Sant'Antonio crushes fruit from its two vineyards located in Val d'Illasi, and Monti Garbi.

It's the Monti Garbi vineyard where the brothers laid the foundation for producing contemporary wines of high quality under the label Scaia. The Scaia wines receive dimensions of concentration thanks to Monti Garbi's alluvial soil and the constant stirring of the lees during vinification. The decision to only use steel tanks and not barrels to ferment the wines has turned out wines of freshness and complex fruit expression.

Tornatore

Sicily, Italy

Making wine at the foot of an active volcano isn't for everyone. It certainly has been a generational pursuit for the Sicilian estate of Tornatore which has been producing wine for over 110 years just north of Mount Etna, Europe's most active volcano, with intense passion and sublime results. Tornatore has vineyards spread out across Mount Etna's best sites at high altitudes, rooted in mineral rich soils fed by volcanic lava and nurtured by Mediterranean warmth and cool sea breeze.

Blessed with all these natural gifts, Tornatore produces wines of astonishing quality, tasting of flavours unique to the region thanks to its approach to only plant the local superstar grapes Nerello Mascalese and Catarratto, making the most of Sicily's delightful Mediterranean climate and rich volcanic soil.

Stark Conde

Stellenbosch, South Africa

Stark-Conde is a boutique South African winery based in Stellenbosch that takes an interesting approach to wine making. The estate was established by Cuban-American wine enthusiast Jose Conde in 1998. Today, the winery produces around 6000 cases of wine a year, and is recognized for the consistently high quality of its vintages.

Stark-Conde owns 40 hectares (100 acres) in the Jonkershoek Valley, which is considered to be a prime region for red varieties. The vineyards are planted on steep slopes above sea level, providing excellent drainage which helps control the vines' vigour. This redirects energy into berry production, and allows the vine to produce fine examples of Cabernet Sauvignon and Syrah.

Bodegas La Horra

Ribera del Duero, Spain

Bodegas La Horra was established in the Ribera del Duero region by one of Spain’s most famous family estates, Bodegas Roda. Bodegas La Horra is able to produce a Tempranillo with high finesse that nevertheless remains true to its roots. Cultivation takes place ecologically, and due to the method of cultivation, the grapes can only be harvested manually.

In the cellar, the grapes are kept and vinified separately for each vineyard. This makes it possible to adjust the length of aging according to the potential of each wine. The practice of inducing spontaneous fermentation creates a Tempranillio expression unique to the terroir of Ribera del Duero.

Bodegas Mauro

Tudela del Duero, Spain

Bodegas Mauro is the brainchild of one of Spain’s most famous and experienced wine makers, Mariano Garcia. Mariano established Bodegas Mauro in 1978 in the Ribera del Duero region after producing more than 30 vintages for one of Spain’s most prestigious estates, Vega Sicilia. The self-taught wine maker planted 70 hectares of Tempranillo and Syrah in the region, interestingly before the Ribera del Duero appellation was established.

As a consequence, even today, Bodegas Mauro enjoys freedom from the appellation’s rules and has been able to focus on creating his own uniquely opulent and ripe style of red wine. Bodegas Mauro’s wines have been featured more than once among the world’s Top 100 wineries and the estate’s wines have been hailed as the standard to aspire to in the region.

Gramona

Penedes, Spain

Regarded widely as Spain’s finest Cava house, Bodegas Gramona is based in the Penedès appellation with a history of over 140 years. Gramona was the region’s first estate to recognise and nurture the potential of Cava and take the indigenous sparkling wine to a level of quality where it can, today, match Champagne

The Gramona family is hailed for its decision to age its Cavas almost twice as long as the appellation regulations require. Gramona ages its Cavas for at least 30 months. Their top end Cavas are all aged under cork and are riddled and disgorged by hand. Gramona is also recognised for practicing biodynamic farming.
